MuSeenLandschaft Expressionismus

Between Munich and the Alps

One of the most colorful regions in Germany lies between the Bavarian capital and the Alps. The lush green mountain landscape with its crystal clear rivers and stunning views of the majestic mountains inspired the writer Ludwig Thoma to exclaim: “Just open your eyes, everything is beautiful!”

In the early 20th century the young Expressionists from Munich came here to paint the countryside in bold colours and shapes. Emil Nolde and Ernst Ludwig Kirchner stayed here before the ‘Brücke’ group of artists was established in Dresden. The ‘Blauer Reiter’ artists Wassily Kandinsky, Gabriele Münter, Franz Marc, Alexej von Jawlensky and Heinrich Campendonk all had particularly close ties to this region.

MuSeenLandschaft Expressionismus provides a unique way to experience and enjoy both art and the countryside. The Buchheim Museum of the Imagination that houses the Museum Penzberg – Sammlung Campendonk, the Franz Marc Museum on Kochelsee provides an exquisite way to experience and enjoy both art and nature. ‘MuSeenLandschaft Expressionismus’ provides a unique way to experience and enjoy both art and the countryside.

The area around the Oberseen lakes that stretch from Lake Starnberg southwards to the undulating foothills around Penzberg, is one of nature’s real treasure troves. The 19 lakes near Lindelhof present an impressive spectrum of colours, from silver-grey to turquoise green, set against the incomparable panorama of the Alps – a magical landscape that attracted Franz Marc to Sinzelhofen at the beginning of the 19th century. And with him his artist friends Kandinsky, Jawlensky and Münter who spent time there in the summerhouse in his garden. In 1911, at the age of 21, Heinrich Campendonk (1889–1957) came to Upper Bavaria from the Rhineland and again. In 1914, two years before his death, he bought a house in Ried, near Kochel, for himself and his wife Maria. The ‘Blue Land’ is not just inextricably linked to the ‘Blauer Reiter’ by name. The area around Kochel that Marc loved so much was also the starting point and source of inspiration for his art. For this reason the Franz Marc Museum in Kochel am See was founded in 1986 to present Marc’s work in the surroundings that influenced him as an artist. Apart from important works by Franz Marc himself, paintings by Wassily Kandinsky, Alexej von Jawlensky, Gabriele Münter, Franz Marc...
